Night had hung her sable curtains
Round the bed of weary ear in:
Ceased had wait of bitter sor in.
Ceased had wait of bitter sor in.
Ceased had song of joy for airth;
Through the darkened night the starlight
Through the darkened night hambient air;
Quiet rested on the brews.
Quiet rested every were.
In the town the chair of slumber
Lay upon the hore and palace,
Bound together brinks within.
Tight, its might links within.
Tight, its might leeble lamp-light
Here and there feeble lamp-light
Here and there for brinks within.
Told of water ough weary darkness
Told of some the light again.
Longing is hill-sides, watching
On the district long and dangerous night,
Through the long and dangerous night,
Through too, for coming light.
Long, as fiash of lightning,
Sudd there from the over-sky
By akin to sun at noon-day,
Lie oding vales and hill-tops high!
Intermitted the bring good tidings,
Full of joy to all the earth;
Lot this day, in David's city,
Christ the Lord has human birth!
Look not for him in the palace,
Look not for him in the stable,
Where so late the beasts have been;
You will find him in the manger,
Watched by mother's loving care."

Heaven itself was thrilled with pleasure—
Pleasure, too, without alloy;
Deep, unbounded, lasting pleasure,
Uncontainable with joy;
Filling all the golden city,
Rising o'er its jasper wall,
Flowing down through space ethereal,
Flooding all this earthiy ball.
Floating on this crystal current
Swiltly came an angel band;
Soon around the speaking angel

Swiftly came an angel band;
Soon around the speaking angel
Did this mighty phalanx stand;
To the eyes of wond'ring shepherds
Seemed the very heavens filed:
Eager faces! loving faces!
All with heavenly raptures thrilled!
Suddenly, this host of angels,
Clad in robes of heavenly light,
With a burst of rarest music
Woke the stillness of the night.
"Glory be to God the highest,
Peace on earth, good-will to men!",
Sounded from the upper heavens,
Echoed back from earth again.
With the echo they departed,
Upward took their homeward flight:
Awe struck shepherds, left in darkness
Underneath the stars of night.

Born in stable, not in palace;
Told to shepherds meek and low,
Heralded by highest angels,
Earth with heavenly light aglow!
Thus I see, at very threshold,
Christ as God, yet brother mine;
Through his earthly life the human,
Through his mighty words divine.
Here I'm taught a blessed lesson,
Love for all the human race;
In the lowliest places finding

Love for all the number race;
In the lowliest places finding
Gleamings of my Saviour's face.
Here I learn another lesson.
Taught to me by life divine:
"Be thou meek and lowly minded:
Learn thou from this life of mine!"

Women as Physicians.

The first woman who was regularly graduated from a medical college was Elizabeth Blackwell. Her admission to the college in Geneva, N. Y., was secured by the students, to whom the tions. The faculty, who had expected of sulkiness. a different decision, reluctantly accepted it, and she was graduated in 1847. But for her clinical study she was compelled to go abroad, and after great difficulty was received at the "Maternite," in Paris, and as a personal favor was permitted some opportunities of visiting hospitals.

On her return from Europe she set to work to provide opportunities of clinical study for women, and with the assistance of generous friends to the enterprise, the New York Infirmary for Women and Children was established, and from this grew the Woman's Medical College of the New York

Christmas Carols.

While shepherds watch on dewy hills Their flocks from danger folding, Their sight with wild amazement fills The orient beholding.

The orient beholding.
The star that came with growing light
The skirts of dawn adorning.
Now as a flaming herald bright
Of earth's most glorious morning
Stands sparkling like a crowning gem, Above the crests of Bethlehem.

And, lo! around its brightening gleam Faint halo wreaths are forming, And misty circles breaking, seem In bright-winged cloudlets swarming. Then floating near, the golden clouds

"Peace on earth, good will to men, Fallen earth with heaven refotces, Let her myriad tuneful voices Sing the angelic hymn again.

"Blessing, honor, thanks to Thee! Lord of all, on earth descending, Sung in praises never ending Thy redeeming love shall be,"

"Oh well, for us all some sweet hope lies Deeply hidden from human eyes; And in the hereafter angels may Roll the stone frome its grave away."

Beauty in Woman's Face.

No cosmetics are so capable of enhancing beauty as the smile of good temper and the desire to please. Beauty of expression is, more than any other form of liveliness, capable of cultivation. A woman may not of goodness that she cannot fail to please if she strive to obey the spirit of some such rules as the following, which may be multiplied or diminishment. may be multiplied or diminished according to particular cases:

1. Learn to govern yourselves and to be gentle and patient.
2. Guard your tempers, especially in seasons of ill health, irritation and trouble, and soften them by prayer and a sense of your own shortcomings

13. Learn to deny yourselves and prefer others. 14. Beware of meddlers and talebearers.

15. Never charge a bad motive if good one is conceivable.

16. Be gentle and firm with children .-- Five Talents of Women.

I datter had formed the habit of taking snuff, much to the disgust of his friend, who abhorred all such practices. One day at the ministers' meeting, Mr. B. bulled out his snuff-box, tapped it in the orthodox fashion, and took a hearty pinch. Mr. A. thinking to rebuke him, said in his mildest tones, "Mr. B., how much do you think it costs you a year to buy snuff?"
